Writ Says University Paid
$575,000 for Hotel in 1936

New Orleans, July 19 (AP)—With indictment of five political and business figures on a charge they carried out a scheme to sell Louisiana State University $75,000 worth of furnishings in a hotel already owned by the University, the federal government indicated today its renewed interest in the complicated political structure left by the late "Kingfish" Huey P. Long.

Seymour Weiss, New York and New Orleans hotel man who was sponsored by the "Kingfish," was named with four others in the federal indictments returned yesterday.

Weiss, former treasurer of Long's political organization, was one of several persons charged with income tax evasion over four years ago. Criminal prosecution of the charge was dropped, as were the charges against other top lieutenants of Long, after the Senator's death. Weiss paid a $38,746.10 civil claim.

Indicted jointly with Weiss yesterday were Dr. James Monroe Smith, whose resignation as president of Louisiana State University several weeks ago "broke" the political scandal that launched numerous state and federal inquiries; Louise Lesage, assistant to the president of the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana; Monte M. Hart, president of Hart Enterprises Electric Company and member of Caldwell Brothers and Hart, building contractors; and J. Emory Adams, Baton Rouge chain store official and nephew of the former L. S. U. president's wife.

The indictment recited that L. S. U. in 1936 purchased the Bienville Hotel in New Orleans from the Lee Circle Hotel Co., Inc., headed by Weiss and Hart, for $575,000, for use as a home for nurses during construction of the new charity hospital here.

Then, the indictment said, the defendants sold to the University the furnishings of the hotel for $75,000 despite the fact the furnishings were included in the original sale. Of this money, it was charged, Smith got $14,000, Adams $11,000, Weiss $16,500, Hart $19,066.91 and Lesage $8,850.

The mails were used in this scheme, it was alleged, to send checks between New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, July 18 (AP)—The position of the Treasury July 15: Receipts $9,031,415.38; expenditures $19,048,487.15; net balance $2,729,289,256.28; working balance included $2,047,037,559.88; customs receipts for month $12,355,048.25; receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $148,079,474.40; expenditures $151,469,974.69; excess of expenditures $3,390,499.29; gross debt $40,612,115,666.77; increase above previous day $1,343,164.52; gold assets $16,179,454,757.13.

Death in Chamber

Phoenix, Ariz., July 18 (AP)—Death in the state's lethal gas chamber was decreed today for Robert Burgunder, 22-year-old college sophomore, by a jury which convicted him of killing Jack Peterson, Phoenix automobile salesman. The youth's father, former Seattle prosecutor, had pleaded as head of defense counsel for a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity and attempted to shoulder the blame as a "neglectful" and "ignorant" parent.

Kuhn to Appear

Bund Leader Says Lawyer
Arranges for Appearance in Court Thursday

New York, July 18 (AP)—Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund, said today his attorney had arranged with the Webster, Mass., court for his appearance there Thursday to answer charges of intoxication and abusive language.

The Bund leader denied that he was intoxicated or that he had used abusive language, as charged by Patrolman Henry Plasse who arrested him early Sunday morning.

He insisted, further, there had been no default of the $54 bail he was required to post before he could proceed on his week-end visit with Anastase Andreivitch Voniatsky-Voniatsky, founder of the Russian National Revolutionary Fascist Party, at Thompson, Conn.

Kuhn's story was supported by three Bund officials who were with him, William Kunze, national publicity director; James Wheeler-Hill, national secretary, and Gustav Elmer, national organizer.

Weiss and Lesage Indicted

Seymour Weiss (right) and Louis C. Lesage, indicted in Louisiana's newest sensation, stride out of the federal building in New Orleans after making bond. Weiss is a New York and New Orleans hotel man and tonight Louisiana politician. Lesage is special assistant to the president of the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana. They were indicted, with former President James Monroe Smith of Louisiana State University—and two others—on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Governor Proclaims
Clinton Day July 26

Governor Lehman has proclaimed July 26 as "Governor George Clinton Day." He urges all the state to join Orange, Ulster and Dutchess counties in observance of the 200th anniversary of Governor Clinton's birth.

The date will be observed by the three counties in which Governor Clinton, first governor of the state, resided. Plans for a big celebration in Newburgh have been made. Governor Clinton is buried in the grave yard of the First Dutch Reformed Church in this city.

Cedar Street Man Given
Alternative of Fines or Jail; Was Held on
Two Charges

Samuel Bush, 53, of 144 Cedar street, was given the alternative of paying two $50 fines or spending 100 days in the county jail. He took the jail term.

Bush was convicted before Justice John Watzka of driving a car while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident, and on his plea to the two charges was fined $50 each or given 30 days in jail as an alternative. To a third charge of operating a car without proper brakes he insisted he was not guilty and this charge will come up later.

Strikes Elmer Harvey

It was the car operated by Bush which struck Elmer Harvey of 43 Lucas avenue Sunday night near the city entrance on Abel street as Harvey was walking along the highway. Bush failed to stop and was later arrested by Kingston police after the crash had been investigated by state police and sheriff's office employees.

At Eddyville the car of Bush struck a machine and continued on. The occupant of a car following secured the number of the offending machine and followed. At the city line the same car struck Harvey and the number of the car was reported to State Trooper Reilly by the woman driving the car. On that information Bush was picked up.

The accident at the city line was investigated by Deputies Young and McCullough and as a result of that charge Bush was arrested. Picked up by the police and brought to the city hall in a radio car, Bush was charged with the offense at Eddyville and also by Harvey with the hit and run offense. Harvey made the complaint in the hit and run case and the arrest was made by the sheriff's deputies.

Relief Officials
Turn Attention
To Reducing Lists

WPA Chiefs Study Means of Cutting Geographic Differentials in Pay to Aid Security

(By The Associated Press)
With the strike of WPA workers over the new 130-hour month apparently ended, except in a few cities, relief officials turned their attention today to enforcing other restrictions recently enacted by Congress.

State administrators struggled with the problem of trimming 300,000 names off the WPA rolls by August 1 to conform to a reduced budget. The law requires furloughs of those on the rolls continuously for 18 months, and Col. F. C. Harrington, the WPA commissioner, said such persons would constitute most of those dropped.

In Washington headquarters, WPA chiefs studied means of eliminating geographical differentials in pay to preserve the present national average security wage of $52.20. Harrington said this would necessitate increases in the south and decreases in the north and west. He predicted it would cause a "howl."

Labor Leaders Busy
Return of striking workers to their jobs did not end the attempt of labor leaders to obtain repeal of the 130-hour law in favor of the old prevailing wage system. The law requires each employee to work 130 hours for his monthly security wage, thus lowering the hourly rate of some craftsmen.

William Green and other AFL leaders called on Congressional leaders in Washington yesterday. Green said the labor officials were neither encouraged nor discouraged by the reception of their suggestions, but most Congress members predicted the session would end with no change in the law.

After conferring with Vice President Garner, Green said: "I gained the impression he felt there would be great difficulty in getting anything through Congress this session."

The strike situation in Pennsylvania and Minnesota differed from that apparent in most other states. WPA officials said only 766 were absent from the 41 Philadelphia WPA projects, and 501 of 15,725 WPA workers were out in Pittsburgh.

These figures were termed ridiculous by James L. McDevitt, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor. He said there would be no disorder in the strike of AFL workers on WPA projects called yesterday in the state.

New Concern
(By The Associated Press)
A pair of chronic trouble spots on opposite sides of the world caused new concern today.

The free city of Danzig was watched closely as leaders of the Danzig government met to discuss the next steps to bring about reunion with Germany. The meeting was called just a few hours after Nazi Leader Albert Forster returned from long talks with Adolf Hitler.

In Berlin a government spokesman said that German officials believed the Danzig question was "steering in the direction of a peaceful solution." He added "we are very optimistic," but he failed to deny the suggestion that "solution" could mean only incorporation of Danzig in Germany—Hitler's stated program.

In Tokyo five key cabinet ministers met in emergency session to study a full report of recent Soviet air raids on strategic rail centers in Japanese-protected Manchoukuo.

Asked To Protest
The Japanese government, already taking a grave view of the situation, was asked by the Manchoukuo government to protest directly to Moscow over the raids. Meanwhile land fighting along the disputed border between Outer Mongolia, under Russian protection, and Manchoukuo, Japanese-protected, flared anew in the vicinity of Lake Bor.

Observers of the Danzig situation expressed concern over movement of 40 military supply trucks seen proceeding along a highway leading into Danzig from East Prussia, driven by men in uniform. Neither the destination of the trucks nor the nature of their cargo was known.

The Danzig issue, particularly the truck movement, disturbed an otherwise calm atmosphere in London. The British, now taking the view that their preparedness measures have reached a "satisfactory state," looked at the immediate future with steeper nerves. The Daily Express predicted that there will be no European war involving Britain this year.

Britain's preparedness program moved ahead as her inspector-general of overseas forces, Major-General Sir Edmund Ironside, began in Warsaw the task of coordinating Polish and British military strength.

Grading Project
WPA Favors Proposal

City Engineer James G. Norton received word Monday afternoon that the WPA in Washington had approved a $370,000 city-wide grading project on the unimproved streets in the city.

This project calls for the grading of all of the unimproved streets in Kingston, and will afford work for approximately 200 men for a period of a year.

This city-wide project in conjunction with the city-wide park project and the sewer projects that have been approved, will afford work for all of the men employed on the local WPA for the remainder of the year.

Fight on 9-W Puts
Man in Hospital;
Driving Is Cause

Paul Krusher Tests New Car, Companions Take Objection to Driving,
Fight Ensues

Paul Krusher of Albany avenue extension was treated at the Kingston Hospital early today for injuries about the face and head which he received in a fight on the Saugerties road, according to Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg and McCullough. No arrest was made by the investigating officers.

The story gathered by the officers was that Krusher was trying out a new car on the Saugerties road. With him was Charles Henington, Thomas Donato and Frank Michelson, and when the party reached Schoenaght's Hotel one of the party objected to the speed at which Krusher was operating the car. He reached over and pulled the car out of gear. At this point Krusher is said to have stopped the car and pulled the offending companion from the car. A fight ensued in which Krusher was knocked down and injured about the head when his head struck the pavement.

The deputies reported the affair took place on the stretch between Schoenaght's Hotel and the 9-W Roller Rink. After Krusher was injured he was taken to the hospital by his companions.

Lives to Tell

Pittsburgh, July 18 (AP)—A 125-car freight train ran over 10-year-old Robert Robb but he lived to tell his experience. He dropped his bathing suit yesterday while he and a playmate were walking down the Pennsylvania railroad tracks toward a swimming hole. He said he stooped to pick it up "and that's the last I remember." A double-header freight struck the boy and knocked him between the rails. He lay there unconscious as the two engines and cars rumbled over him.

School Destroyed by Fire

New York, July 18 (AP)—A fire which sent dense smoke clouds over Manhattan's East Side and Central Park destroyed the 50-year-old Sacred Heart School in Brooklyn last night. Five firemen were overcome by the smoke, which drifted across the East river to Manhattan. The school, valued at $50,000, was unoccupied at the time. Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy said the fire apparently originated in materials used by painters who had been redecorating the school.

Dies in London

London, July 18 (AP)—Jacob Hugo Taisch, 51, Masonic author of Boston, who was American delegate to the installation tomorrow of the Duke of Kent as Grand Master of English Free Masonry, collapsed last night while proposing a dinner toast at the Authors Lodge and died, apparently from a heart attack.

Mrs. Carroll Cleared of Popo
Death as Result of Inquest

Coroner Howard B. Humiston of Kerhonkson Monday afternoon following an inquest held to hear testimony regarding the death of Arnold Popo, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Popo of Lafayette avenue, killed in a bicycle-automobile crash on the Plank road on May 1, rendered a decision of accidental death "as a result of being struck by a car owned and driven by Beatrice Carroll, and that said death was not caused by any act of gross, reckless, culpable or criminal negligence committed by said Beatrice Carroll."

Exonerated of Mrs. Carroll of all blame for the accident came after the coroner had heard testimony of the three eye witnesses to the accident.

Young Popo was struck by the Carroll car on the Plank road near the Horace Boice property on the afternoon of May 1, about 5:40 o'clock as he was riding his bicycle along the road. The testimony of the only eye witnesses was that he crossed the road directly in the path of the Ford car and was thrown to the concrete pavement where he suffered fatal injuries. He died at the hospital where he was taken by a passing car which Mrs. Carroll summoned.

Wedding Gifts Were Rocks

Threats of muttering, uninvited guests who opposed the New York city wedding of Carmelo Locapira, 60, and 16-year-old Torsilla Minichilli, shown together above, brought out 14 uniformed police three radio cars, 10 fire trucks and an ambulance—to answer riot calls from the wedding scene. The couple are shown later in their barricade apartment where riot squads protected them after a rock had been hurled through a window and a threatening crowd had gathered.

Dynamite Blast Is Wrong,
Kills Young Photographer

Harlem, Mont., July 18 (AP)—Wade K. (Sonny) Confer, 14-year-old schoolboy, who wanted to photograph a 26-ton dynamite blast at his father's quarry, was killed when the huge charge went amiss. The quarry appeared today as if it had been bombed.

Instead of dropping a rock wall flatly, the explosive hurled granite boulders weighing up to 30 tons high in the air yesterday at the Snake Butte quarry.

Eighteen persons were injured. Fourteen railroad flat cars were "crumpled like tinfoil," one witness said. Rails were uprooted and power lines torn down. Two camp buildings were crushed in. The quarry supplies rock for rip-rapping on Fort Peck Dam. Quarry workers theorized the explosive found a horizontal fissure through which to escape instead of pushing the rock outward.

Large boulders struck 800 to 1,000 feet from the quarry wall.

Highland Wonders What to Do
About Adequate Water Supply

Public Meeting Brings No Decision; Two Types of Wells Discussed
by Taxpayers

Highland, July 18—This village which overlooks the blue, expansive flow of the Hudson last evening pondered the paradoxical problem of establishing a new, adequate system of water supply.

A public meeting called to air the situation before the taxpayers ended without a definite decision as to which type of water supply should be used in the community, but in his report Merrill Vrooman, engineer, favored the idea of constructing a storage tank or reservoir.

Taxpayers of the village seemed at variance as to whether wells should be drilled or the reservoir gravity system used. Mr. Vrooman pointed out that in his opinion, the well system would not be workable in the village, although he favored securing the water from driven wells.

Not Sufficient Supply
Wells which had already been dug for private use, he pointed out, were found not to be of sufficient supply for town or village purposes, and he indicated it would be impractical to attempt that method.

One of the main questions, Mr. Vrooman said, was whether or not the people wanted a supply that would be sufficient for many years both for domestic use and fire protection, or whether they

Medicine Heiress to Have Plenty to Say in Court

New York, July 18 (AP)—Merry Fahrney, Chicago patent medicine heiress, disclosed today that she has capped her string of four matrimonial ventures with another suit for divorce.

Asserting she was "very angry" at husband No. 4, Count Oleg Cassini, for hinting that she had a new romance in mind, the blonde-curl countess said the divorce action was filed through her attorney yesterday and that she would have "plenty to say" in court.

"When the count says I have other marriage plans, it is simply ridiculous," she said heatedly.

Count Cassini said he was "agreeable" to a divorce but mystified as to the grounds on which she would seek it. "I don't understand it inasmuch as adultery is the only grounds for divorce in New York state," he said.

Says Measure Is Real Step Toward Goal of Putting Spending Within U. S.
Income

Meeting 8:30 P. M.

Roosevelt and Hull to Be Present at the Evening
Discussion

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau praised the President's $2,800,000,000 lending bill today as a "real advance toward the goal of bringing our governmental expenditures within our receipts."

Testifying before the Senate banking committee, the treasurer said he liked the idea of lending billions of dollars for self-liquidating projects.

"It may well turn out to mark a transition point in the public finances," he declared, adding: "If we can substitute self-liquidating investments in place of outright government expenditures we shall have made a great step toward bridging the gap between revenue and expenditures."

Reviews Provisions
Morgenthau reviewed major provisions of the bill. These included items which, over the period of a few years, would provide $750,000,000 for highway projects; $350,000,000 for loans to municipalities; $500,000,000 for leasing railroad equipment; $460,000,000 additional for rural electrification projects; $500,000,000 additional loans to farm tenants to enable them to buy their own land, and an additional $100,000,000 for export-import bank credits to finance foreign purchases of American merchandise.

Morgenthau told the committee he did not wish to predict that the government will suffer no loss on any of the various features of the program, but said the projects had been selected because of "a high probability of repayments."

Mentions Idle Money
Mentioning huge sums of idle money in the banks and low interest rates, Morgenthau said:

"In times like the present it therefore becomes the government's function to act as a catalytic agent to bring together investors who are willing to lend their savings at rates of interest low enough and borrowers who are able and willing to employ funds for productive purposes."

"A low rate of interest, if effectively utilized, constitutes one of the most potent weapons our economic system has developed for stimulating business activity xxx."

"It is this principle of low interest rates which is utilized in the bill before you. The government is bringing together idle funds and borrowers who are unable to borrow under existing circumstances. It does more than that."

"It creates the additional incentive for lenders to lend and for the borrowers to borrow by giving the stamp of approval and administrative assistance to useful and paying enterprises which otherwise would not be undertaken at this time. Thus men and capital now unemployed are put to work."

Extraordinary Conference
An extraordinary night conference at the White House was arranged by administration senate leaders today, apparently for the purpose of weighing finally the chances for neutrality revision this session.

The meeting (at 8:30 p. m.), it was authoritatively reported, will include President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, Senate Democratic Leader Barkley, Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee and three senate Republicans, Minority Leader (Continued on Page Two)

60 Are Stricken

Food Poisoning Strikes at Those Who Attended
Picnic of Church

Hebron, Md., July 18 (AP)—Several critical cases among 60 persons stricken by food poisoning at a church picnic were reported today as health department technicians labored to determine if victims suffered from a virulent form of contagious dysentery.

Dr. William Enrich, only physician in this town of 900, attended patients in every street while Dr. D. S. Fisher, acting health officer for Wicomico county, directed sanitary precautions to stem the spread of the malady should it prove contagious. A tentative diagnosis was said by physicians to indicate contagious dysentery.

Homemade ice cream in which unpasteurized milk was used may have caused the outbreak, health officials indicated. The milk source was being traced today.

Hatch Bill Gets Revision So That 'Confusion' Is Out

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Senator Hatch and Representative Dempsey, New Mexico Democrats, disclosed today they had rewritten the former's bill curtailing political activities of government employees in order to "eliminate confusion" and gain support for the controversial measure.

Dempsey said he would offer the substitute in the house on Thursday, when the bill will be called up for debate.

The revision would forbid any official in the executive branch of the government, with a few exceptions, using his official authority to influence an election.

The new draft retains the principles of the bill as approved by the Senate. Hatch had contended that changes made by the House Judiciary Committee weakened the measure.

Ban on Management
A provision in the rewritten bill would place a ban on political management or political activity which, Hatch said, would prevent federal office holders from playing any part in national political conventions.

Hatch said he believed the phrase "executive branch of the Federal Government" would include such agencies as the Social Security Board, the TVA and the RFC.

The measure would exempt members of congress and their staffs who, Dempsey said, should be placed in a category apart from administrative officials. It would exclude, too, the president and the vice-president, employees of the president's office, heads and assistant heads of executive departments, and officers confirmed by the Senate who determine policies of the nation "in its relations with foreign powers or in the nationwide administration of federal laws."

Violations would be punishable by removal from office. The new draft retains language intended to guarantee all persons the right to vote as they choose and to "express their opinions on all political subjects."

The legislation also would prohibit receipt or solicitation of funds from relief workers for political purposes and would forbid intimidation or coercion in connection with any regular, national election.

Credit Unit Grows

Cooperative rural credit used by farmers in this locality to grow crops and to buy livestock and equipment amounted to $639,540 on July 1 according to Charles L. Boyd, secretary of the Middletown Production Credit Association. A total of 130 new members joined the association. In all, $312,289 new money was advanced, an increase of 12% over 1938. The total membership in the Middletown Association including farmers of Orange, Rockland, Sullivan, and Ulster counties is 556. During the five and one-half years 883 farmers have used $3,900,000. A five-man board of farm directors are interested in the operations and granting of loans. President, C. H. Bunker, Jr., of Fonda, a dairyman, poultry, and crop farmer; vice-president, John L. Schoonmaker of Accord, a dairyman, cash crop, and poultry farmer. The other directors are: C. C. DuMont of Ulster Park, fruit grower and master farmer; Samuel B. Phelps, of Walden, dairyman; W. Harrison Wheeler, of Florida, dairyman and onion grower.

Increase Reported

New York, July 18.—Gross revenue from the nation-wide air express service of the Railway Express Agency for May increased 39 percent over May, 1938, the agency reported today. This monthly revenue record has been exceeded only three times since the service was inaugurated in 1927. May, it was said, is not ordinarily a heavy month in air express.

Professors Attack New Deal Policy As 'Dictatorship'

Hanover, N. H., July 18 (AP)—Two professors from large eastern colleges made direct attacks upon the New Deal today, with one declaring that some of President Roosevelt's policies mean "dictatorship in the authoritative, European sense."

Dr. William Starr Myers, professor of politics at Princeton, in a prepared address opening a three-day conference at Dartmouth College, promoted by the Braman Fund Committee for the Defense of the Constitution, applied the "dictatorship" term in saying Mr. Roosevelt held "it is for the president to make the policies, and for congress to find the methods to carry out his will."

"It has shown itself in direct steps toward an authoritarian state," he added, of the New Deal. "The T.V.A. plan is pure socialism. Our present system of taxation and relief is communistic in part. The New Deal attitude toward business is fascist."

Walter E. Spahr, professor at New York University, contended in another prepared address that representative government in this country in the last seven years had become "more and more a government of the few, for the few, and by the few." "It is my considered opinion that since 1932 no one procedure has been more characteristic than the nose-counting of pressure groups and the dangling before them of promises and programs designed to catch their votes. "This procedure is euphemistically called popular government, government for the forgotten man, a New Deal. It is nothing more than vote counting, a getting of laymen's answers to intricate questions, a government by and for pressure groups in an effort to keep the politicians in power, a repudiation of the basic principles of good representative government, a new day for demagoguery, a government by politicians who rule in the name of the masses while they cheat them."

Fire Sweeps Through Pittsburgh's Stockyards

Pittsburgh, July 18 (AP)—An eight-alarm fire visible for miles swept through the Union Stockyards on a northside island early today.

Flames leaping 100 feet or more into the air within a few hours spread over an area estimated at 10 blocks long and three blocks wide. They were so hot they melted asphalt on a traffic bridge leading over the island.

A small number of cattle quartered in the yards during the week-end shutdown stampeded. Firemen at 7 a. m. (E. D. T.) still were pumping water on the flames in an effort to prevent them from engulfing a packing company plant also located on the mile-long island formed by the Allegheny river and a creek. Extent of the damage was not determined immediately.

Mrs. Carroll Clear Following Inquest

driving toward her home in West Hurley at about 45 miles an hour and had passed a car when the lad on the bicycle wheeled from the side of the road directly in front of her car and she had no time to stop. The rider had turned left apparently to cross the highway. He identified the lad as Arnold Popo of 19 Lafayette avenue.

Three girls, Clara Shurter, 15, Loretta Shurter, 17, and Ruth Barringer, all residents of the vicinity, told him they were walking out the road from Kingston when they saw the lad approach from the direction of West Hurley. He circled around after passing them a couple of times and then rode up to them. Just as he was about opposite them he suddenly turned to his left and started across the road. The girls did not see the Carroll car until the instant of impact and they said the lad rode directly in front of the car.

Reilly said there were no skid marks or brake marks on the road and he had tested the brakes of the car and found them in good shape. Keates Young, deputy sheriff, said he arrived about 6 o'clock, saw the car at the side of the road with the cycle hanging on it but the people had gone to the hospital. With the trooper and Sheriff Molyneux he had assisted in the investigation. The brakes on the car were in good condition. Later Mrs. Carroll returned from the hospital and discussed the accident with the officers. The three girls also talked of the crash.

The three girls were called and told their story. They said the lad had come down on the right side of the road and passed them and then circled around a couple of times came back to where they were. He circled opposite them and then "shot out in front of the car." The cycle was struck by the front of the car and Popo was thrown off and struck on his head on the concrete near the right edge. The girls all said they had not observed the car until an instant before the crash when it was close upon the cycle. It was the right wheel of the car which struck the cycle.

Clara Shurter said she could not recall which one of the four lanes the car was traveling in when it struck the boy but it ran off in the right and came to a stop off the concrete some distance up the road. She said she could not fix the speed but the car was entirely off the cement when it stopped. Mrs. Carroll came back to the boy. Clara said she was about five or six feet away from the lad when he was struck and he was directly opposite the three girls as he circled to his left to cross the road. No signals were given by the boy and she heard no horn sounded. He was riding with both hands on the handle-bars.

Loretta Shurter told practically the same story. She said she had not seen the car before the lad wheeled in front of it but she placed the car at the time of the impact as straddling the two right hand lanes of the four lane pavement. Frank Modica, a lad nearby, came about five minutes after the crash.

Grace Barringer also told about the same story. She said he had come back and was about opposite or a little ahead of them when he suddenly cut over to his left and wheeled directly in the path of the car. Just as he turned he looked back but the impact was immediate. She also said the car was straddling the two east lanes of concrete on the right of the road.

Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux was called and said he had talked to Mrs. Carroll after the crash when she returned from the hospital. He identified photographs taken. He said he did not recall the distance the car was from the point where glass was found on the highway indicating the point of contact but he believed it was about 700 feet up by a fruit stand. He told of making a canvass of the neighborhood to ascertain whether anyone had seen the crash and was told by a woman three girls had seen it.

Later he talked to the three girls and they told the same story to the corner. He also took statements from them. Mrs. Carroll told him she was driving toward home on the right of the

Police Get Third 2-Way Radio Car

Radio Engineer Charchian turned over to the police department last night the third radio car to be fully equipped with two-way communication. The fourth car also will be similarly equipped.

When the radio system was first installed in the police department one-way radio communication was set up in the four radio cars of the police department.

With the one-way system the officers on duty in the patrol cars were only able to receive messages placed on the air from police headquarters, but with the two-way system they not only receive but return messages.

The new system affords better police facilities, for police headquarters at all times can now keep in constant touch with the radio cars equipped with the two-way system.

USE YOUR BRAINS!

The winner of a school prize wrote this: "A match has a head but no brains. When you use its head use your brains!"

That's good advice for every person in this broad land of ours—adult as well as child. For matches and smoking, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, cause three times as many fires as any other known cause. They are responsible for four times as many fires as overheated chimneys and flues; and almost six times as many as lightning.

Putting it another way, matches and smoking cause 27 per cent of all fires of known cause—and fires of known cause comprise 83 per cent of the total. That means that misuse of matches is responsible for the burning to death of thousands of people every year—to say nothing of property destruction running into the tens of millions.

The tragic phase of this is that every fire caused by a match or by smoking material is a preventable fire. There is no excuse for going to sleep in bed with a cigarette in your hand—but people do it continually, and a great many of them never again awaken in this world. Nothing is easier than to stamp out a cigar butt when you are finished with it, or to properly dispose of the ashes from a pipe—but each year there are untold instances where this isn't done—and in some thousands of those instances fires, great or small, result. It certainly doesn't call for any great effort to dispose of your matches and cigarettes in the ash tray in your car, instead of throwing them out of the window—but millions of acres of ravaged land that once bore magnificent timber, offer mute testimony to how many times this simple smoking precaution is forgotten.

Smoke if you will—but don't forget the obligation every smoker owes to everyone else—and that is to be ever watchful of what happens to smoking materials when he is done with them. The most common cause of fire is the most inexcusable.

CLEVER DUCKS

We usually think of ducks as pretty dumb, especially tame ducks. But they may have a higher I. Q. than we give them credit for. Their cousins in the East Indies certainly suggest it.

According to Edward M. Hutchens, a Milwaukee manufacturer who lately returned from Bali, the ducks there seem more intelligent than our American cattle and sheep. The farmers all have flocks of ducks. They live in villages, with their livestock around them at night. When they go out into the fields for their daily work their ducks follow them. Every farmer will have several dozen ducks, and every flock follows its master in close formation. The different flocks remain separate, although they may be close together.

It is like a parade. Every farmer has a flag on a bamboo pole, with a colored flag or a bunch of rooster's tail feathers of special color or pattern. In every case the ducks know their master's flag and follow it unerringly. When the farmer gets out to his land, he plants the flag in a certain spot and immediately the ducks stop and scatter around, digging for their living. At the end of the day the farmer picks up his flag and the ducks promptly follow him back home.

Of all the things we've read or heard about tropical Bali, it seems as if that sight might be most worth seeing. Now why doesn't some clever American farm boy start training his ducks to parade?

NAMES

The first requirement of clear-thinking, as Confucius pointed out in China long ago, is "rectification of names." Give a thing the right name, and you have a good start toward getting somewhere. The German Nazis are now engaged in that enterprise. And they have a harder time than the Chinese sage did, because they have tackled sport instead of philosophy.

It happens that sport names are mostly English and American, because these countries originated most of the athletic sports now practised throughout the world. Not only is the general term "sport" English, but names and technical expressions and costumes used in sport are largely English.

"Shorts" and "breeches" and "knickers" and "blazers," for example.

That won't do at all in Hitlerland. So they are talking now of Golfhosen and Plunderhosen, and so on. But they don't seem able to avoid "sportshosen" and various other hybrids. Why not "Hitlerhosen" or "Goebbels-hosen"?

NEW RULES FOR NLRB

The National Labor Relations Board, which has been resisting Congressional efforts to amend the Labor Act, now announces revision of its rules. Hereafter, employers may ask for collective bargaining elections when two or more labor unions claim to represent a majority of their workers.

Hereafter, too, a minimum period of ten days, instead of only five, shall intervene between issuance of a complaint and a hearing.

These and other revisions are intended to liberalize the rules under which the board has administered the Wagner Act. The board has contended that the reform legislation urged in Congress was not necessary and that the same results could be obtained simply by changes in administration of the law. The current revisions seem to be for this purpose. If they are inadequate, the need of legislation will be clear.

If followed in good faith, the new rules should eliminate some of the practices which employers have found unfair and which have stood in the way of wholehearted cooperation between workers, unions, employers and Board. There could be more effort of this kind, on all sides, to meet opponents half way and to create better feeling in this important field.

It never seems to have occurred to the Pullman people to solve the sleeping berth problem as the airline manufacturers have done, head-foot-head and so on.

LARGE UNHURRIED BREAKFAST

"The hustle and bustle of the average person's daily life in this machine age, the lack of time to create a habit, improper foods or freak diets, pandering to the almost universal desire for slenderness, insufficient fluid intake, and other factors contribute to the prevalence of constipation."

I am quoting Dr. Clayton C. Perry, Cleveland, Ohio, in an article on Constipation in "Medical World."

I believe Dr. Perry's statement that "the lack of time to create a habit" is one of the great truths as to the cause of constipation. With a great many individuals, there is the hurried breakfast and no time for, or thought of, the intestinal habit. And so common is constipation that he states further:

"It is so rare in my experience to find a patient who is not constipated that I have come to look with awe and wonder at those who tell me that their bowels move naturally and regularly. A review of their bowels move naturally and regularly. A review of 200 consecutive case histories of patients examined in my office (except cancer patients) revealed that 125 complained of constipation and used cathartics. Among the 75 non-constipated patients, however, there were several with diarrhoea and colitis. If these cases are excluded, the number with normal bowel habits is small."

One of the conclusions come to by Dr. Perry is that a large breakfast is one of the most important factors in correcting constipation. With this conclusion most physicians will agree because a hurried light breakfast does not give the impulse to the digestive tract to move and drive wastes downward. It is difficult for the average individual to sit down and eat a good breakfast in a leisurely manner, and to take time to sit and read the paper for a few minutes after breakfast, seems impossible.

Yet, if this same individual were to retire a half hour earlier, and get up a half hour earlier, he could easily eat a larger, unhurried breakfast, read his paper, and reach office or factory in plenty of time.

President Roosevelt Faces a Decision Not Unlike That Which Wilson Faced in 1919

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, July 18.—President Roosevelt is face to face with a decision not unlike that which President Wilson faced in 1919 when a hostile Senate foreign relations committee refused to sanction a policy of international cooperation and insisted on "isolation."

The decision relates to whether the President wishes to appeal to the country over the heads of the senators, or whether he will allow American policy to drift without action.

Today Mr. Roosevelt has at his side a different alignment of groups than did his predecessor. There is, for instance, Senator Norris of Nebraska, who not only filibustered against the arming of merchantmen in 1917, but voted against war. Mr. Norris has proclaimed his belief that the President is right in seeking to exercise for America rights of international law which would permit the United States to supply arms and munitions to foreign countries in war time, provided they came to American shores in their own ships to get the supplies, and provided that American producers agreed in advance to put a title to the property in foreign hands before the products left our ports.

The policy which the Nebraska senator advocates is that which the President and Secretary Hull want. Can it be construed as a program that will involve America in war? Mr. Norris thinks not. The administration thinks not.

Can the issue be dramatized into a war and peace controversy? It was so dramatized in 1919. The very League of Nations which was organized to prevent war was hailed by the isolationist group as a probable breeder of wars. Senator Hiram Johnson of California was one of those who gave to the league controversy the twist that war would come out of the league's powers. It never did.

Nor did it preserve peace, though proponents insist this would have been accomplished if America had joined.

The California senator is today a leader of the isolationist bloc which insists that to sell arms and munitions in war time will involve America in war.

Mr. Wilson was by no means the campaigner that Mr. Roosevelt is. The radio was not then a factor in campaigning, and, if it had been, Mr. Wilson would not have been as effective as Mr. Roosevelt, who is conceded, even by his opponents, to be a master of the art of simplicity in radio speech.

The isolationist senators followed Mr. Wilson around on his tour in 1919, speaking in public meetings called immediately after he would visit certain cities on the trip. The reaction from the war itself and particularly from war-time legislation of a restrictive sort aided the isolationists so that the league issue became symbolic of pro and anti-Wilson sentiment.

The so-called liberal groups fought the league with conservatism in both the Republican and Democratic parties supported it. Today most liberals are on Mr. Roosevelt's side because the war issue itself has a liberal angle to it. The oppression of liberals by the totalitarian laws governing labor and the freedom of worship, have placed liberals strongly against the tyranny of fascism as well as communism.

It may be difficult, therefore, from the standpoint of lining up public sentiment, for the isolationist group to fight against the many liberal elements which will be ranged behind the President. The controversy is really a needless one, because a repeal of the arms embargo would merely place the United States in a position in war time to exercise or refrain from exercising rights under international law, and, at best, the claims of each side that war would be brought on by one policy or another are insusceptible of proof.

But the question of whether one's sympathies are with the totalitarian powers or with the democracies is a live matter, and it will be easy for the speakers on behalf of the administration to develop a crusade for democracy in dramatic phrases.

In other words, Mr. Roosevelt is being handed an opportunity to tour the country on a non-partisan, patriotic, international issue which can readily dwarf in importance the balance of domestic problems and throw a smoke screen around the whole series of New Deal adventures in unbalanced budgets and social reform. The Republican minority in the Senate which had a chance to focus attention on domestic questions in preparation for 1940 preferred to aid the isolationists, and Mr. Roosevelt now can choose, drop the neutrality bill at this session of congress, try it out on the country on his way west this summer, and in Hiram Johnson's state when visiting the San Francisco fair. The President can then make up his mind after surveying public sentiment whether he will call an extra session in the autumn to continue press congress for neutrality legislation.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 99—JOHN MARSHALL

During her span of service the "John Marshall" served many owners and roamed the waters from as far south as Chesapeake Bay north to Portland, Maine, and thence to the Hudson river and Rondout creek area. She began her career as a passenger vessel, was later converted into a towboat, and ended her days as a lighter in and around New York harbor.

The "John Marshall" was a wooden-hull steamboat built at Baltimore, Maryland, in 1844. She was 200 feet long, breadth of beam 26 feet, depth of hold eight feet. Her tonnage was rated at 330 tons gross and 238 tons net, and she was powered with a vertical beam engine with a cylinder diameter of 50 inches with an 11 foot stroke.

Chesapeake Bay in the vicinity of Baltimore was the first area of service for the "John Marshall." She was used as a passenger and freight carrier on the bay until 1849, when she was taken east and placed in service between Boston, Massachusetts, and Portland, Maine. A few years later the "John Marshall" again appeared on Chesapeake Bay, and some time during the year of 1856 she was purchased by steamboat interests in Albany, New York.

The Hudson river travelers knew the "John Marshall" as a passenger vessel for only a short time, for soon after her appearance in this section she was converted into a towboat. At this period in her history, her engine was rebuilt by McGinnis Machine Works at Albany, and following that change she was placed in service as a towboat between Albany and New York.

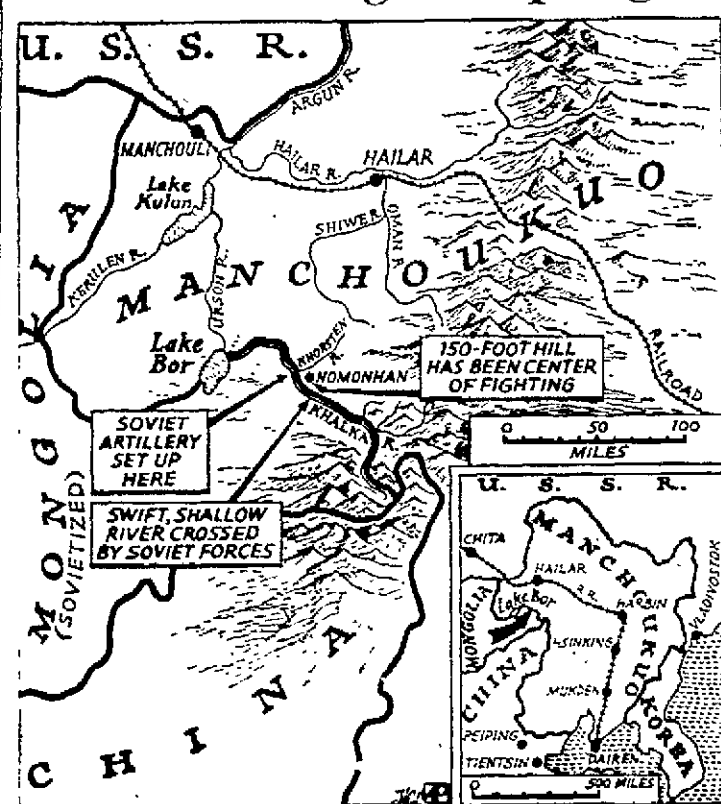

In 1863 Thomas Cornell of Rondout purchased the "John Marshall" to replace the towboat "Mohogan," of the Cornell line. The "Mohogan" was then rebuilt for use as a coal barge and the "John Marshall" was put on the towing route between Rondout and New York in line with the rest of the Cornell fleet which was comprised of the towboats "James Madison," "Norwich" and "Santa Claus," later renamed "A. B. Valentine."

For many years "John Marshall" was under the command of Captain Jake DuBois with Abram Parsell as chief engineer. In December, 1867, the "John Marshall" was taken to New York on her way to New York with a tow.

The "John Marshall" was sold to Charles B. Bop of Rondout, who "cut her down" and converted her to parties in New York City and was used in and around New York harbor until she was completely worn out and scrapped.

MAPPING THE NEWS

The Russians and Japanese Are Mixing It Up Again

Warfare arising from border disputes between Soviet-Mongolian forces and the Japanese is an old story. But the fighting that's been going on since early May in the desolate area shown here is on an unusually large scale—to judge from reports such as these: That scores of planes have been seen action, that the Japanese have destroyed 250 Russian tanks and armored cars, and that the Russians are using several dozen artillery pieces. As usual, each side has claimed victories.

BLIND DATES

By Edwin Rutt

what. And Mr. Coletti had no intention of waking up there with her. He had the keys to the car.

He tore along beneath the trees. Ahead of him shone the lights of the highway. A low stone wall, dividing the property of Richard Craftonbury Adams from the public thoroughfare, rose to bar his way. The Ape, going good now, took it in his stride. A moment later he was in the field where they had left the car.

With a suppressed cry of triumph he leapt into the vehicle, switched on the lights. In a second he had inserted the key in the ignition and started the motor. But just as he was heading the car out of the field, he received a shock that momentarily chilled his blood. "Step on it," said a voice from the seat behind him.

The Ape flashed around. Then he relaxed.

"Dottie!" he exclaimed. "Don't ask why I'm here. Miss South instructed him. 'Just drive.' The Ape was willing to drive. But he was not prepared to refrain from asking questions.

"How'd you know where the car wuz?" he inquired.

"I found it by using my head," Miss South informed him. "I knew the Chisler would leave it somewhere handy. And I'll tell you something more. Angel-Face. If you hadn't had the keys I'd have been half-way to New York already."

By now they were speeding down the main road in the direction of the hamlet just mentioned.

"Say," demanded the Ape interestedly. "How come you bring out a wrong guy, Dottie?"

This was a subject upon which Miss South cared not to dwell.

"It's a long story," she said, in a tone calculated to discourage further questioning.

For ten miles they flew along in silence.

"Hey!" said Coletti suddenly. "Who wuz dat guy I socked, anyhow?"

Miss South took a breath.

"That," she said, "was the guy who owns that estate."

"De big erl muckymuck?" Coletti inquired.

Miss South nodded vaguely.

"But I thought he wuz in Yur-rup," said the Ape.

"He was. He came home unexpectedly."

"Wul, geez," said the Ape. "He'd be as good a snatch as de other lug." He peered at Miss South in alarm. "Whassa matter wid you anyway, Dottie? Losin' yer grip?"

Miss South looked at the Ape with an expression that might have been a distant cousin to admiration.

"Good Lord, Ape," she cried. "For once you seem to be right. I was a fool not to have thought of that. I—I guess I was a little confused for the moment. Turn around quick. There may be time yet."

Coletti did so. The car roared back toward Saltair Acres.

In a few minutes they were again abreast of the wall that bounded Mr. Adams's estate on the highway side. Leaping out, they picked their way carefully back through the parkland. But fifty yards from their goal, they stopped short. Through the trees they could see lights swinging and the breeze bore voices to their ears. It was only too apparent that someone had beaten them to it.

Miss South looked at the Ape. The Ape looked at Miss South.

"Well, Coletti," she said, "the game's up. We're scramming."

"An' how," said the Ape, with feeling.

Champion Champ

MR. RICHARD CRAFTONBURY ADAMS was one of the champion champs of all time. Whenever anything got into his mouth it was his invariable custom to champ on it forthwith. And, as a general rule, the havoc wrought by his championing was terrible in the extreme.

Wherefore, awakening in the pitch-black of the smokehouse with the headache to end headaches and finding his mouth full of what seemed like somebody's old bathing-suit, Richard Craftonbury began to champ immediately.

The fact that Mr. Adams championed his way to freedom in an incredibly short time is not to be taken as a slur upon the handiwork of Mr. Ape Coletti. Quite the contrary. The wonder is that Mr. Coletti's gag held out as long as it did. Mr. Coletti was a good gagger, one of the best in the business. But, in Mr. Adams, he was simply up against something very, very tough.

Gnashing, tearing, biting, ripping, slashing, rending and snorting, Mr. Adams proceeded to show the cock-eyed world what an oil tycoon can do when aroused. The gag offered stubborn resistance. But in a short time one of Mr. Adams's canine teeth got a grip on the outer handkerchief.

There was a rending sound. Mr. Adams gathered himself and rent further. The gag fought back fiercely, but futilely. Presently it was all over but the shouting. Mr. Adams sat up, spitting out lint, ravelings, shred and small humbled bits of fabric in general. Then the shouting began, in a big way.

"Help!" shouted Richard Craftonbury, in a voice that would have shamed a Stentor. "Help, dammit! Somebody get me out of here."

Continued tomorrow.

Need Two Feet

Colorado Springs, Colo. (AP)—How to make a mountain grow is a problem puzzling the Chamber of Commerce. Recently state engineers took an altitude reading atop Mount Evans, west of Denver. It showed 14,111 at the highest spot the highway reaches. There is a sign at the crest of Pikes Peak. It says the altitude is 14,110 feet.

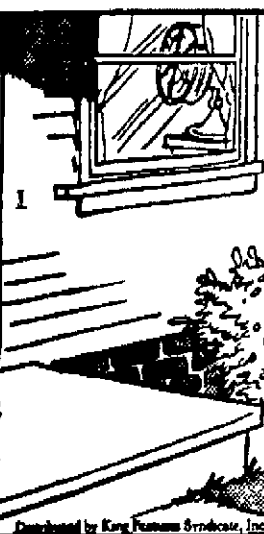

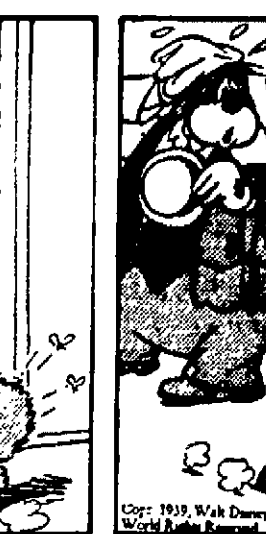

Profitable Prison

Warsaw (AP)—Wyoming county's prison farm no longer is a tax-payers' headache. Sheriff Lewis Spring, who started the farm system three years ago, say "the experiment will pay the county a revenue this year."

Lieutenant Worley — I want some intelligent men as hospital orderlies. Any pharmacists in the company?

A flaxen-haired individual shuffled forward.

Lieutenant Worley — Ye Gods! Are you a pharmacist?

Recruit (indignant) — Shure ya bane pharmacist. Vy ah bane work on pharm all my life.

Some Printer!

"May I print a kiss on your lips?" I said, and she nodded her sweet permission.

So we went to press, and I rather guess we printed a full edition. "One edition is hardly enough," she said with a charming pout. So again on the press the form was placed and we got some "extras" out.

Teacher—How many of you children want to go to heaven?

All the children raised their hands—except red-headed Johnny.

Teacher—But Johnny, don't you want to go to heaven?

Johnny—My mother told me to come straight home after school.

We know a man who is so poor that he doesn't have to sew up the holes in his pockets.

An absent-minded film producer walking along the street was stopped by a beggar, who related to him a heart-rending sob story.

Producer—Try to work out a happy ending and bring the script to me next week.

Father—Now, son, that I am giving you a start in my mill, I want you to study the business and work yourself up.

Son—What's the use, dad? I want to start some place where I can marry the boss's daughter.

Huh!

Yes, love is sweet, it is a treat. Though it does drive you daffy. And yet, why shouldn't it be sweet. When its mostly taffy?

A doctor and a clergyman of the same name lived on the same road. Just as the doctor got a job in Africa the clergyman died. On reaching his destination, the doctor sent a cable to his wife, but it was delivered to the clergyman's widow in mistake. It ran as follows:

"Arrived safely. Heat terrific."

Customer (having a rough shave)—I say, barber, have you another razor?

Barber—Sure—why?

Customer — I want to defend myself.

If some of these agitators would agitate a hoe on the farm the country would be a lot better off.

Caller—Say, missus, can you give me a job digging potatoes?

Lady—Land sakes! We don't dig potatoes for another month yet.

Caller—That's all right, ma'am. I'll live here until digging time.

'Playboy' Next Playhouse Drama

An Irish play, "The Playboy of the Western World", will be presented at the Woodstock Playhouse, July 20, 21, 22, and 23. This, the fifth play of the season, was written by the brilliant Irish playwright, John Millington Synge. Synge wrote "The Shadow of the Glen", "Well of the Saints", "Riders to the Sea", and numerous other fine plays which all have been successfully produced in New York by the Abbey Players.

The characters of the play are the fishing folk to be found along the Irish coast. The imagination of these people from "Kerry to Mayo", and the language they use is rich and living.

Miss Margaret Randall, the well known motion picture actress, is to play the leading role of "Peggy Mike", daughter of a publican, "Michael Flaherty". Richard Bowler (last seen in "Once Is Enough" as the Duke of Hampshire) is cast as the latter. Miss Randall will be remembered by the Playhouse audiences, for her brilliant and amusing characterization of the Russian dutchess in "You Can't Take It With You".

Others in the cast will be: Paul Hammond, Donald McHenry, Miss Edith Gresham, Marion Siller, Lester Bacharach, Robert Whitehead, Betty Mallock, Dorothy Berry, Helen Harmon and Charlotte Hudson.

St. Joseph, Mo., (AP)—Two St. Joseph bankers flipped a coin the other day with $500,000 at stake. It was their way of deciding which bank would be the depository for $500,000 worth of Buchanan county funds for the fiscal year.

Czech Foreign Legions Are An Old Story---And A Good One

Youths Today Follow An Example Set In 1914-18

Background: On dark nights nowadays Czech-Slovak youths slip over the Czech border into Poland, where they are forming legions to fight, if war comes, against the Germans.

The Czechs are experienced border-skippers and fighters in strange territory. During the World war, they formed legions in France, Italy and Serbia—and especially in Russia. Their opponents then, too, were Germans—the Germans of Austria-Hungary, an empire of which they were unwilling subjects.

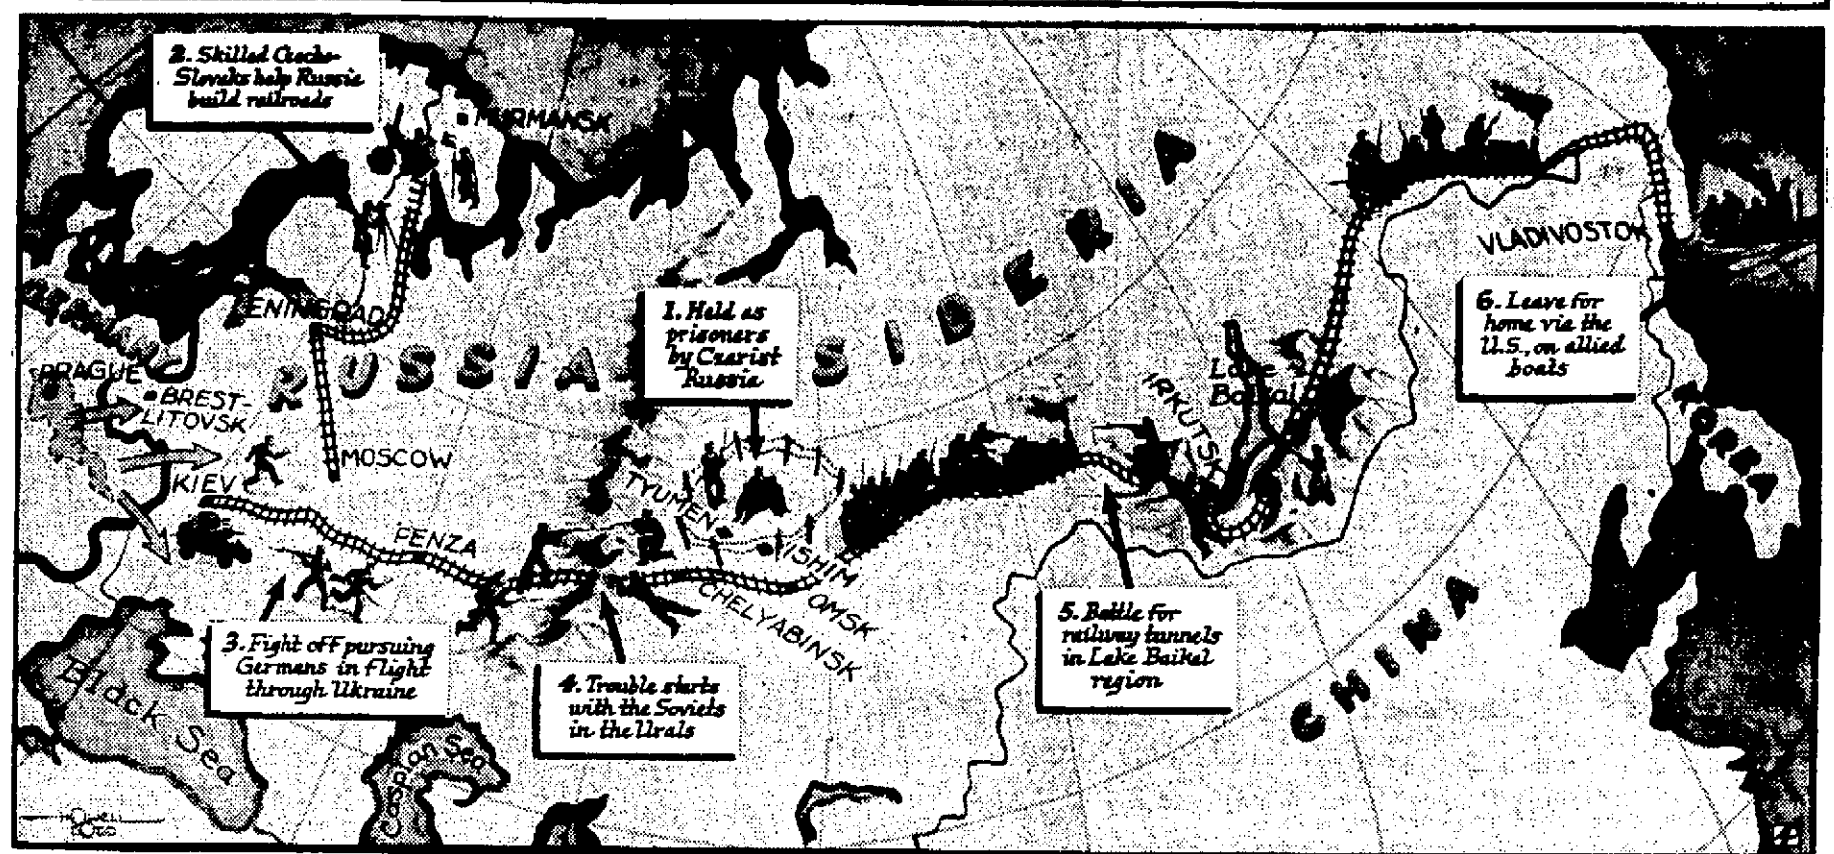

The story of the 100,000 Czech soldiers in wartime Russia will shed light on what may be expected of the expatriated Czechs in any second World war. Lloyd George called the story "one of the greatest epics in history."

By The AP Feature Service Those grim young Czechs forming foreign legions today have a stirring example to live up to. For a quarter of a century ago, other grim young Czech legionnaires were getting into—and out of—one of history's tightest jams.

Forced to fight for Austria-Hungary, the Czechs deserted and crossed into Czarist Russia, where they became prisoners.

Far from home, they kept up hope, formed a national group, proved themselves skilled workmen, and gave a tenth of their pay to promote Czech-Slovak independence. Finally Russia permitted them to form Czech legions to fight on the Russian front.

In 1917 the Czechs were concentrated in European Russia. German troops were surging toward them from the west. Enemy Turkish troops formed a wall to the south. Chaos and the ice-packed Arctic were to the north. Five thousand miles of chilly steppes blocked the east.

How the Czechs made their historic 5,000-mile trek to Vladivostok

And all around the Red revolution was raging.

As the Germans pushed in, the Czech legion became serious. Russian soldiers merely laid down their guns and went home or became prisoners of war.

Two Divisions Trapped But since the Czechs were largely deserters, the German army treated captured Czechs accordingly.

Two Czech divisions were fighting near Kiev in the Ukraine.

Facing certain death, if captured, they went over the top with a fury that sent enemy troops sprawling. But they were only two divisions on a large front.

In November, 1917, the Bolsheviks, under Lenin, had seized control of Russia. Lenin signed the treaty of Brest-Litovsk.

The treaty cut off any possibility of the Czechs going home—unless they were willing to accept a doubtful offer of amnesty from the Austrian emperor. And if they continued to fight the Germans they would fight alone.

The Czechs had to think fast. They did.

They decided to push through those 5,000 miles to Vladivostok, thence to return to Europe by way of the U. S.

The Czechs dog-trotted through the chaotic Ukraine—just ahead of pursuing Germans. When Germans in armored cars attempted to head them off, few Germans escaped.

Allies Fought Communism The two divisions commanded by Czechs were fighting with the support of Communists ended the German menace. But more trouble sprang up.

The Bolshevik government learned that the Allies were combating Communism in eastern Siberia, and was alarmed at the prospect of heavily-armed Czechs joining the Allies.

The Bolsheviks would let the Czechs push on only if they surrendered their arms. So the Czechs gave up some of them, but kept other supplies hidden.

The first trainloads of troops reached Vladivostok in 57 days. But most trains suffered all sorts of delays.

By July, 1918, troop-trains were scattered over 4,000 miles of track. Jan Sirovy, the famous one-eyed general, was in command.

Trouble with the Soviets increased at each station. Soon Czechs and Bolsheviks were battling throughout the Urals. As their trains got on, the Czechs had to fight for each town. And each railroad tunnel in the Lake Baikal region had to be won.

Held the Railroads The troops stayed on in Eastern Siberia until the Armistice, helping the Allies hold the railroads. Then they left Vladivostok for home, via the Pacific and the United States. They were rewarded with a free Czechoslovakia.

Today, other young Czechs are working for the same goal.

SHOKAN

Shokan, July 18—William Loos, of Jamaica spent the week-end with the James Carpenter family.

Mr. Loos, who has a number of friends in this section, is a brother of Mrs. Carpenter.

Callers here Sunday included Mrs. Lillian Hoffman and Lester Snook of Trenton, N. J., both of whom are guests for a few days of Mrs. John North of the west side of the reservoir.

Mrs. Hoffman, who has been here before, is a guard in the state insane asylum in Trenton.

Earl Brundage, mountain road blacksmith, is ill at his home with an attack of the sciatic rheumatism. Mr. Brundage has been in poor health for more than a year, but up until a few days ago he had been able to do a considerable amount of horseshoeing with his portable outfit.

Albert Starkweather of Monticello was at his bachelor quarters in the village center over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. George Salgami, who came here last week from Jackson Heights, are at the Earl Elmdorf home on the state road.

Mr. Salgami conducts a successful florist business on Park avenue, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bailey, of Catskill, attended preaching services in the Olive and Hurley O. S. Baptist meetinghouse Sunday.

Other Greene county residents here for the meeting included Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt Osborn of Athens.

Corn growth on hillside fields last week was badly retarded by the drought; the leaves withered until there was nothing much left of many plants. The crop in the main is holding up fairly well, but stunted hills in dry spots will be reduced yield for a greatly reduced yield of both grain and stover this fall.

Potatoes also are drying out and this crop promises to be a poor one unless heavy rains come soon to the reservoir country.

Mrs. Inez Corley of Philadelphia arrived here Saturday for a vacation sojourn at the Dumont family camp along the north boulevard.

Mrs. Corley, formerly Miss Inez Dumont, is a native of the old village of Shokan.

July 18, 1876, Cornelius Swarthout, an old resident of the Back Brook section of Boiceville, died.

Mr. Swarthout's 100-acre farm lay along the hill road near the westerly slope of Toran's Hook.

Lawrence Brandt and Edward Malloch accompanied Kenneth Olson here for the week-end.

Shokan friends of Mrs. Mary Rogers, a highly esteemed summer resident of the Winchell mountain neighborhood, are sorry to learn that Mrs. Rogers is quite seriously ill.

ESOPUS July 18—Mrs. Nina Vibbard has just returned home from the Kingston Hospital.

Mrs. Mada Hamel has just returned home from the Benedictine Hospital.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Relief for Two Carbondale, Pa.—A transient, accosting Mayor William L. Monahan, complained his soles were sore.

The mayor took him into city hall, slipped off a pair of brand new brogans and said: "If they fit, they're yours."

They did, and the man walked out mumbling his thanks.

"They've been pinching me for three days," sighed the mayor.

Iron Man Greenup, Ky.—John Holley wouldn't let a little cranial needle-work stop him.

Thrown through the windshield of an automobile in an accident, Holley suffered head cuts so severe Dr. H. H. Holbrook took 75 stitches to close them. The work required two hours.

Then Holley, a merchant at nearby Rush, Ky., resumed his trip home.

Honeymoon Siege Continues Today

New York, July 18 (AP)—Siege of New York's harassed pair of "May-December" honeymooners continued today, with the 60-year-old husband, Carmelo Locapira, and his tearful 16-year-old bride, Torsilla, waiting a quiet chance to slip out of their barricaded Greenwich Village apartment for a trip to Italy.

Passersby gawked at the third-story window which was shattered by a stone during the couple's wedding breakfast yesterday, but the explosive taunts and cries of "shame!" which welled from crowds during the newlyweds' first day had abated.

While neighbors still argued the pros and cons of an "old man" taking such a young bride—with a few declaring Torsilla was lucky to get a well-to-do husband with "real" furniture—Locapira told his police guards he wasn't planning any immediate move. Torsilla, he said, will not go back to her seventh grade desk at Public School No. 3.

BPW Employs 76 Men, 40 Working on Streets

Seventy-six men are employed on the Board of Public Works at the present time, of which number 40 are engaged in a continuation of the street repair and construction program outlined by the board.

The past winter raised havoc with the city's streets and created an emergency situation which was remedied as soon as weather conditions permitted. Up to July 1, the board expended $50,000 in street work.

With still considerable street work to be done the Common Council at its July meeting granted a further appropriation of $30,000 to carry on the program.

At the present time the WPA forces are busy excavating a trench on the Wurts street hill in which to lay a new water main, and as soon as the main is laid the public works board plan to reconstruct Wurts street for its entire length.

Superintendent Sleuding has prepared a list of streets that are badly in need of rebuilding and repair and work on these streets will be carried on as rapidly as possible.

A new top will be placed on Lucas avenue and also on Warren street as well as Jefferson Place and Charlotte street. Work on these streets has been started.

Highland Wonders About Its Water

were ready to accept one which would be less ample.

The engineer suggested taking over such usable portions of the Highland Water Company as were needed and the construction of a tank or reservoir. This, he said, would meet the needs of the village and he estimated the reproduction cost at $161,000.

Depreciation of the present plant was fixed at $78,000 with the appraised value of the plant at $84,000. He said it was not intended to take over the Schantz pond which has been used when other supply sources are low.

Without Tax Increase

The new plant, it was estimated, could be constructed without increasing the village taxes and could be made to pay for itself over a term of years. He estimated a required bond issue of $150,000 and presented the following figures:

256 consumers at $24 per year, $6,144—50 consumers at $42 per year, $2,100—industries $2,560, 60 hydrants, $3,000. Total income $13,804.

Operating expenses were listed as follows: Retirement of bonds each year $5,000—average interest $2,063—operation $3,000; total $10,063. This would leave a balance of $3,741.

The plan of Mr. Vrooman was declared practicable by A. F. Daffert of the State Board of Health. He declared that the state department had been trying since 1932 to get an improved water system in the village. He favored wells where possible, but believed the system as outlined by Mr. Vrooman would serve the purpose. He said any plan approved by the taxpayers would also have to be approved by the state.

Eberhardt's View

The well system was approved by Edwin Eberhardt of the Highland Taxpayers Council. It would be cheaper and more satisfactory, he said. He called for a report of this system by the engineer, E. Walter Seaman also expressed the opinion that the well system would be more satisfactory, pointing out that in time the other proposed system would be the same as the one now in operation. He also favored the smaller cost of the well system.

Supervisor John F. Wadlin, who represented the town board which had called the meeting, announced that another meeting would be called in the near future for a taxpayers vote on the approval.

This morning in police court the hearing was adjourned for a week. Peter Mayone, 55, of 23 Ulster street, was arrested Monday afternoon for operating a car with a learner's permit, and not having a licensed operator with him. This morning sentence was suspended on Mayone's agreement to take a driving test.

On Even Keel

Portsmouth, N. H., July 18 (AP)—The disabled submarine Squalus, in which 26 men died, was found to be resting on the bottom on an almost even keel today when a diver made the first descent since the craft tore away from lifting pontoons last Thursday.

The diver reported the submarine had only a slight list to port. A tangle of lines about the Squalus' deck prevented his making a complete inspection, pending which plans for a new salvage attempt cannot be made.

Porpoise Declined

London, July 18 (AP)—Buckingham Palace authorities have declined the offer of a one-ton porpoise which got lost in the River Thames and died. Porpoises, strange as it may seem, are "Royal fish" under an act of parliament in the 14th century reign of Edward II, and so the fish had to be offered to King George VI. After palace officials hastily had waived their rights, the porpoise was towed to sea today for burial.

Peddlers Discover Freedom of Seas

New York, July 18 (AP)—Peddlers, forbidden to operate on New York's Orchard Beach, have discovered freedom of the seas.

Patrolman Eugene McGovern informed Magistrate Leonard McGee that when he started out in pursuit, the peddlers hopped into rented boats, rowed out of wading range, and shouted derisive remarks across the bounding blue.

After several days of this, McGovern said he caught one of them by commandeering a life-guard's rowboat, but noted sadly that some of the peddlers had started using outboard motors.

"I suppose next year they'll be using yachts," chuckled Magistrate McGee as he fined McGovern's one captive $5.

Ecudorean Opossum

Found Among Bananas

A certain native of the tropics gets special consideration these days at the Minasian fruit store on North Front street. He came here some time ago, but now has become acclimated and seems to thrive excellently on a special diet.

The little fellow was a rare find indeed and came when his eyes scarcely were opened to an environment quite uncommon to his ilk. He is an opossum from Ecuador and came to town snugly embedded in a stalk of bananas shipped from the Central American country. He was about the size of a chipmunk when he arrived but has grown a bit since. Another one like him created a stir in New York several weeks ago, since his type is seldom found away from home even in banana stalks.

There's a Good Reason

You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and cure it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

It is as simple as if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such as one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. All-Bran is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

City League Game Tonight, Boiceville vs. Wiltwycks

Tonight at 8:30 Lou Knapp's Boiceville Rangers and Gus Steigewald's Wiltwycks hook up in a battle for second place honors at the Athletic Field. The winner moves into a second place dead-end with Joneses in the hectic last half pennant race, while the loser falls to fourth place.

Boiceville rung up an 11-2 win over Grunewalds Friday night, while the Wiltwycks plastered a 16-9 defeat on Joneses. "Shaking off the series of bad breaks that have been hounding them through most of the season, the Rangers and Wiltwycks are looking down victory lane once again. The Rangers' recent batting splurges and steady hurling by lanky Tom McManus and excellent relief flinging by Red Lane has accounted for their long-awaited, spur-of-the-moment victory.

Wiltwycks' big guns, Steigewald, Stoll, Freleigh, Brink et al., finally broke out against Joneses and the Icehouse gang is riding high on the crest of a powerful batting outbreak. With capable hurling by Toddy Uhl, who has been far below form, Komosa and Bucky Asdown, the Wiltwycks are far from being out of the race. The Wiltwycks, then the City's throw last year's second half race into an uproar with a dramatic last round pennant charge.

Efforts are being made by Secretary Jim Geoghan to book a series of Friday night exhibition games with leading Hudson valley teams, such as the Newburgh Recreators and Poughkeepsie top-notch outfit, Elmer Steele's Corke's Grays boasting Red McLean at shortstop. If arrangements can be completed and the games are a hit, a strong effort will be made to bring the heralded Mohawk Giants to town to compete against the City League All-Stars.

The City League All-Stars will be composed of a 17-man squad consisting of three pitchers, two catchers, seven infielders and five outfielders.

The exhibition tilts will be tentatively carded for August if Secretary Geoghan's efforts are successful in booking these diamond treats for the two-loop faithful.

Dizzy Dean Asks If He's the Goat

Chicago, July 18 (AP).—Dizzy Dean may not be his old self on the pitching mound, but he returned to brilliant form in the pop-league today with a verbal blast at Gabby Hartnett, manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Hartnett, Dean home from New York Sunday with his left arm gashed under mysterious circumstances and O'Leary didn't like a bit.

"I don't belong here. I belong to the team," Dizzy told reporters. "What are they doing, making a goat out of me? I wonder how the Cubs are nuts for a winning streak on this trip, and if I can't do help—why, I'm glad to cooperate. But I should be with the team."

The versions of how Dizzy cut arm rolled in from all sides. He was reported he had had some trouble, but he was fighting, had dropped on a soapy hotel lobby floor, and fainting.

But Dean said these reports "the silliest thing I ever heard of," explaining that he was aped his arm against the corner of a glass-top table as he checked for a phone in the dark in hotel room Saturday night.

I never thought a little scratch in my arm would move Hitler and WPA off page one," he wisecracked.

Dean will remain here until the Cubs return from their eastern tour. The team now has only 20 games, five shy of the player.

L. Comiskey Seriously Ill at Summer Estate
St. Louis, Mo., July 18 (AP).—Louis Comiskey, 54-year-old owner of the Chicago White Sox, is gravely ill today at his summer estate near here.

Dr. Russell Oldfield, attending physician, began administering morphine to the baseball magnate last night.

Oldfield said, however, Comiskey appeared "brighter" and there was "some hope." Comiskey's wife was summoned from Chicago yesterday when his condition became alarming. His three children, two daughters and a son, were vacationing with him.

Heart ailment, which has plagued him for years, was aggravated recently by a cold and influenza.

Comiskey, who weighs around 200 pounds, has been ill periodically for many years and has spent considerable time in hospitals and sanatoriums.

His recovery, but he has pulled through several serious illnesses. Comiskey inherited the White Sox from his father, Charles Comiskey, who died here in 1931.

DIZ SHOWS THE DOC HIS 'MYSTERY' CUT

Dizzy Dean is shown as he breezed into Chicago from New York with a glib explanation of how he got the gash which he is displaying in his left forearm. He said he was reaching for a telephone in his New York hotel and cut his arm on the glass top of a table. Photo shows Diz in the office of Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' physician.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)
If the experts begin reading the New York Giants out of the National League pennant race today, grant them ample justification.

At a time when the team should be at full strength to out in on the Cincinnati Reds, seven-game lead-and-protect their own half-game bulge over the Chicago Cubs, infielder Lou Chiozza is out for the rest of the season with a broken leg. Shortstop Bill Jurge is "doing time" for rowing with an umpire, first-string Catcher Harry Danning, the team's third-best hitter, is hospitalized with a leg infection, and Manager Bill Terry is running out of possible infield combinations.

With Chiozza, both bones in his left leg fractured, definitely lost, Terry is down to bed-rock. Already he has Mel Ott, a natural outfielder, playing third base; Burgess Whitehead, a fragile second baseman, shifted over to shortstop; and Alex Kampouris, time duty on the vital second base patrol. If anything more goes wrong, Terry may be forced against his will to adopt the old Brooklyn Dodger slogan of "wait till next year."

It remains to be seen what the Giant master-mind can or will do. George Myatt, the Jersey City Flash, would come in handy in a spot like this, but Myatt may need an operation to get a loose knee cartilage in place and certainly is in no condition to play regularly. Tom Hafey is going along hand-somely on the Jersey City "farm," but the Little Giants are leading the league and it hardly would please the Jersey customers to have the parent club draft one of their star performers at a time like this.

Meanwhile the Reds are draw-

How To Shoot Skeet

By Col. A. J. Macnab, U.S.A., Retired

(EIGHTH IN A SERIES)

The outgoing bird from Station No. 1 is a much-missed bird. The correct procedure is to bring the stock to the shoulder and cheek with the muzzle pointing one to two feet below the flying bird, maintaining a lead of one to two feet until the shot is fired. Nine out of ten of the misses on this bird are due to shooting behind it.

The outgoing bird from Station 7 also causes much grief. Most misses are due to shooting over the bird. The aim should be six inches below it and the temptation to shoot fast should be avoided.

It is a trick shot at Station No. 8. The bird must be broken before it passes the 21-yard stake. The shooter takes his stance facing a point just to the left of this stake for the first shot and facing a point just to the right of it for his second.

In the ready position the whole gun should be held well to the front and the muzzle pointed 10 to 15 feet away from the trap house on the line of the flight of the bird. When the bird appears it is essential that both hands work together—while the right hand brings the stock to the shoulder and cheek, the left hand is swinging the muzzle upward with the flying bird so that the gun is pointed a few inches in front of it at the moment the stock reaches the shoulder.

In doubles at Station No. 6, stand facing a point about 10 feet in front of the low house, as it is easier to swing to the left and shoot the first bird and then come back to the normal position for the second bird.

Next: More Problems

It is a trick shot at Station No. 8. Shooter is facing slightly to the left of the 21-yard stake.

Best Track Competition In Kingston on Saturday

Acc Mile Relay Runners, High Jumpers, Vaulters Coming to Stadium

Fans at the Recreation Department's big track meet this Saturday will witness the best competition in track and field events that has been brought together at a single meet this year.

One of the outstanding events listed is the mile relay in the senior division. Here is a team representing the American squad, and made up of Jeffrey, Miller, Cochran, and Beethan will oppose the Shore A. C.'s team of Wayne Rideout, Elaine Rideout, Johnny Borican, and Tom Flagg. Also in this event will be the Lenox Hill A.A. relay team, Metropolitan champions, made up of Walker, Braun, Abrahams and Crowley. The Grand Street Boys have not indicated just which men will comprise their relay team, but two of them, undoubtedly be Jim Herbert and Giddings.

Spectators will watch with awe as the nation's five greatest high jumpers go into action. This event will be a "black and blue" Monday all around. In addition to the Chiozza collision with team-mate Joe Moore, from which the Cubs' 11-2 shelling of the Dodgers and the Reds' 4-0 shut-out of the Boston Bees left Cincinnati seven games in front of the Giants, the Cubs only half a game behind, and the Dodgers and Cardinals only a game out of second place.

Mishaps Galore

With Chiozza, both bones in his left leg fractured, definitely lost, Terry is down to bed-rock. Already he has Mel Ott, a natural outfielder, playing third base; Burgess Whitehead, a fragile second baseman, shifted over to shortstop; and Alex Kampouris, time duty on the vital second base patrol. If anything more goes wrong, Terry may be forced against his will to adopt the old Brooklyn Dodger slogan of "wait till next year."

It remains to be seen what the Giant master-mind can or will do. George Myatt, the Jersey City Flash, would come in handy in a spot like this, but Myatt may need an operation to get a loose knee cartilage in place and certainly is in no condition to play regularly. Tom Hafey is going along hand-somely on the Jersey City "farm," but the Little Giants are leading the league and it hardly would please the Jersey customers to have the parent club draft one of their star performers at a time like this.

Meanwhile the Reds are draw-

McCloskey Likes Track Program—Vines and Zano Here Friday

Joe McCloskey, who has broken on training for the summer, writes his regret at not being able to enter the Kingston track meet, Saturday, July 22. "With that collection of national stars," he informed Sid Lutzin of the recreation department, "Kingston fans are in for one of the biggest track and field meets of the season."

Hold your hats for that Tommy Zano-Stanley Miller eight rounder at the auditorium Friday night.

These two belting wellers are made for each other, and the outcome should be one of the most sensational scraps of the night.

Vinny Vines meets Tony Greb, another four star action fighter, in the main attraction of eight heats.

The Joneses have an important meeting scheduled for tonight. Probably to talk over that recent protest meeting held by the City Baseball League at which they came out on the short end after a vote by the managers.

About that Jones-Y. M. C. A. softball game last night, one spectator sends us favorable comment on the six hits the "Y" collected off of Ben Toffel, who, he said, really bore down. "Seems the boys all like to say what they can do with Ben, rated as the cream of soft ball hurriers hereabouts....It's
